Video Technologies

Chapter 10 Objectives

After studying this chapter, the student will be able to

- Describe the differences between and identify a sample educational application of traditional and digital motion video

- Explain the role of motion video in support of teaching and learning

- Identify applications for digital and analog motion video in instruction

- Describe how Internet motion video can be utilized to support teaching and learning

- Explain how compressed video on ISDN phone lines with video over the Internet can be used to expand classroom experiences

- Evaluate motion video and its implementation for use in teaching and learning